Two applications have been received for the position of director of the Communications program, according to Dr. Milton Simmons, dean of Liberal Arts.

"We have also received four inquiries about the position," Simmons said. "Notices of the vacancy were sent to various institutions and we just started getting responses."

Simmons said the target date for the hiring of the new director is fall quarter, and that every effort is being made to recruit the most suitable person for the position.

'All-American' honor given to The Pacer

The highest honor in college journalism, the All-American Award, has been given to The Pacer by the Associated Collegiate Press, the primary national rating service for university newspapers.

"It has been our aim to present the best possible image as a college newspaper and such an honor is the result of a team effort," Carl Manning, executive editor said. "No one person can take credit for this. All current and former staff members and editors must share in this honor."

Joining Manning in his praise for the staff was Randy Mashburn, managing editor, who said, "If efforts such as these continue I see no reason why an All-American newspaper shouldn't become a tradition at UTM."

This is the first time the University's newspaper, operating either under the title of "The Vollette" or "The Pacer," has been given the All-American Award.

Gov. Winfield Dunn vetoed the "coed dorm" bill Tuesday and called for an immediate review of housing policies at state owned colleges and universities.

Speaking at his monthly news conference, Dunn said that after a great deal of discussion, "I have come to the conclusion that I should veto Senate Bill 535."

He said he voted against the bill because it "discriminated against a very small group of citizens."

The bill would have outlawed co-educational dormitories at any higher education institution in the state. However, as amended, it would have allowed use of a common dormitory entrance, toyes and sitting rooms.

It provided for a two month jail term and $1,000 fine for any college president or chancellor and charter revocation for that institution if the school did not comply with the law. Only D and E housing under UTM's new housing plan would have been affected.

I do not condone misconduct but I do have an immense amount of respect for the youth of our state," Dunn said.

He said that while some very dedicated, sensitive and conscientious legislators sponsored the bill, it was created without an objective accumulation of in depth research which would offer objective evidence of misconduct on campuses. He said he felt there was some misconduct on campuses "because there is misconduct by people in all walks of life."

Dunn called for the Board of Regents and Board of Trustees to begin an immediate review of housing policies on state owned campuses with emphasis to be on "generally accepted standards of morality."

In addition he stated that the UTK housing plan is good because parents know the type of housing in which their children live.

Chancellor Larry T. McGehee stated earlier that he felt the bill discriminated against the Tennessee college age population. He said he felt it does not follow logically with the legislation of two years ago which granted full citizenship to 18 year olds.

Even with the barriers nothing is really accomplished, he said, adding that people who think that the bill would bring a higher form of morality are "sadly mistaken."

The bill would have possibly conflicted with the 1972 Civil Rights Act, Title IX, which eliminated sex discrimination in colleges and universities, McGehee said.

On Friday Henry Haile, assistant state attorney general, had declared the bill constitutional after a ruling was requested by Rep. Mary Anderson, D-Nashville.

Haile said the state "has a legitimate interest in discouraging extramarital sexual intercourse."

Even with Dunn's veto, the bill is not completely dead. The legislature will convene for two or three days later this month and some legislative sources feel the bill's sponsor will organize a veto-override effort.

Four SGA officers cleared by Congress

By JIM KEMP

Pacer Asst. News Editor

Declaring, "I am not a crook," SGA Vice President David Farrar was cleared of gross negligence of duty charges Tuesday in an SGA Congressional hearing that was investigating his obtaining albums through an alleged misuse of SGA funds.

Also cleared of the same charges in connection with the purchasing of albums were SGA President Roy Herron, Mike Faulk, SGA secretary of communications and Pam Tenry, SGA secretary of finance.

Although Faulk, Ms. Tenry and Herron were asked a number of questions concerning their involvement in the case, most of the investigation was centered on prominent figure in the investigation which stemmed largely from his ordering of larger quantities of records. Also brought out at the hearing was the tardiness which he had shown in paying for the albums, the possibility that he had been ordering albums for persons outside the University and that the last shipment he received disappearing mysteriously from the SGA offices.

The investigation was initiated last quarter after Farrar, Faulk and Herron admitted that they had ordered and received records from Record Source International, a clearinghouse that caters to radio stations and broadcast personnel exclusively.

Farrar and Faulk also admitted they had used WUTM's call letters on the order blanks by which the albums were obtained. Ms.

Tenry became involved in the affair when it was learned that she signed the cash vouchers used in obtaining the albums.

In its last meeting of last quarter, SGA Congress empowered Attorney General Art Swann to investigate the questionable activities of certain SGA officers. Swann investigated the situation and presented his evidence in Tuesday's meeting which was to decide if there was a case which merited impeachment proceedings against the officials involved.

"I paid for the first order with an SGA check and then Roy and I repaid SGA with personal checks," Faulk said. "I felt the record offer was available to me, and that was Caruso has said that bad timing and lack of student support have contributed to the lack of concert success. Bulwinkel said concert money "is being spent in the wrong places."

Legal and ethical points escape SGA Congress

Hey, want to buy some records at bargain basement rates? How about a no interest loan so you can buy those records?

Well, just drop into the SGA office, which is all ready to start operating its "nifty-swift record clearing house and loan company" -- at least that is what can be done according to the do-nothing, good-for-nothing SGA Congress, which cleared four high-level SGA officials Tuesday night for doing the very thing which would make this government of, by and for the students this type of operation for a few elitist officials.

In a move, which is about as logical as the flat-world theory, the Congress continued its policy of growing fat while sitting on its collective posterior by refusing to take any definitive action towards SGA President Roy Herron, SGA Vice President David Farrar, SGA Secretary of Communications Mike Faulk and SGA Secretary of Finance Pam Tenry.

Congress befuddled

At best, the Congressional action could be seen as simply ignoring the problem and it is possible to see it as approval by silence of such actions. And if this is to be the case, then the bag of goodies should be made available to all students since it is the students which finance SGA operations and it is this student money which was so freely loaned to finance these private ventures.

Herron, who allowed Faulk to order records for him from a discount house which services broadcasters, used the limp excuse that this was no different from using SGA funds to finance his trips to SGA related functions. The major falacy with this excuse is that purchasing records for private use does not fall within the role and scope of the duties of SGA President, or for that matter, and other SGA officer.

The general consensus of Congressional members was that their duty was not to question what use is made of monies obtained through the SGA, although it could be used to finance private enterprise not remotely connected with the University.

Never once during this exercise in banality did Congress touch on the crux of the issue, which can be summed up in two points: 1) Did such action fit within the expressed duties of any of the officers involved? and 2) Could the average student have the same advantage of purchasing records by having Ms. Tenry issue an SGA check to pay for such personal purchases?

In the broadest and most general interpretation of the charges of gross negligence of duty, the Congress answered both questions in the affirmative, if not by actual approval, then by silent consent.

But to approach it from a narrow viewpoint, one must ask if such action by SGA officials was to the benefit of the majority of the students on campus, which is supposed to be the primary purpose of the SGA's existence.

And it is patently obvious from the fact that such financial flim flam was kept in tight circles and that the average student had no way of even knowing that such bargains were available, much less having an opportunity to see SGA officials would permit them to do this.

Political games

Whatever the true motives of these involved might be, it will never be learned now

Opinions expressed in The Pacer are not necessarily those of the Administration of the University of Tennessee at Martin. Columns reflect the views of the individual writer and are not necessarily the editorial viewpoint of the newspaper.

because of the kiss-off approach taken by the Congressional members.

Of course, part of the problem can be directly linked to the fact that it is less than a week before the SGA elections and many of those participating in the inquiry had vested interests in that race.

No doubt, Herron, who has been promoting an image of the all-American boy throughout the course of his tenure, did not want to go out of office with questions of his administration's honesty kicking around in the minds of many.

The bulk of the prosecution was handled by Attorney General Art Swann, who just happens to be Faulk's running mate in the presidential race. No further explanation is needed to see how the scenario is beginning to shape up to note that another vice presidential candidate, Jerry Caruso, was all too eager to sweep everything under the table and forget about it. And of course, there is one of Faulk's opponents, Lee Pritchett, who was serving as speaker of Congress and as such chaired the proceedings.

The whole affair had all the attendant trappings of that old political game of "don't badmouth me and I won't badmouth you."

These candidates, and future leaders of SGA, undertook actions which at best are questionable and the students should think long and hard before making a decision about who should be elected.

Weak defense

Throughout the proceedings, Farrar gave his version of the story, in which he said all records he purchased were for his own use and that he, in fact, paid for them himself. Of course it is interesting to note that his check for the payment to SGA is dated the same date as his subpoena for the hearing was served upon him.

And what he said during the hearing differed in many respects from what he told the Pacer less than one month ago. The question was "lying then or was he lying to the Congress. No one in Congress cared enough to ask.

The Congress cleared Farrar, Faulk, Herron and Ms. Tenry and there is little which can be done to bring the matter up again.

But that does not prevent the possibility of taking some long-needed action with Congress, including the calling of complete accountability of its actions and justification for its existence. A first step toward this end would be for the few persons who can think in Congress to initiate action to get an ethics bill passed.

Such a bill would clearly define what can and cannot be done by an SGA official and could be the beginning of an end to such confusion and ambiguous rules regulating the conduct of persons in office.

At this stage of the game it might be wise to suggest that SGA could make a quick buck in the blanket selling business considering the amount of covering up they are doing.

Elections need more concern

At a time when the SGA is undergoing the close scrutiny of questioned credibility, the need for a large turnout of students who have thought out the issues of essential for the upcoming SGA elections Monday.

It is essential in that there is a large turnout, if for no other reason than to let everyone know that despite what may have occurred in the past, the majority of students still have a basic faith and trust in that governing institution.

It is equally essential in that a large turnout, by sheer numbers, will determine a winner who is acceptable to more than a handful of students and who in the coming months can rely on a body of support when the going gets rough.

While The Pacer will not endorse any specific candidate, it is urged that students study the issues and make their decisions on that basic rather than whether a particular candidate belongs to a certain group or cliché or has more effective advertising.

In the final analysis, abstention is quite impossible... someone has to be elected--the choice is only which, not whether.

TOM BROCK

Many men have dreams and hopes and many men fight for the things they believe in. Yet of all of these, one man of our contemporary times stands out far more than the "dream" he had and died for.

Six years ago today the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr. was murdered in his attempt to bring some justice and equality to Memphis.

For many of us, it is difficult to remember where and what we were doing when Ray's bullet shot down one guiding light in this country. Yet, at the same time it is even more difficult for us to imagine the days of "colored facilities" and Blacks riding in the back of buses feeling hatred of those that talked about a free America. Anyone who really gives a damn already knows the story and to repeat it would only bring sorrow and frustrations to many.

King was a man of varied images, considered anything from a violent Communist to a Christian saviour. He had slept in the Northern and Southern cells of hatred and in rat infested beds of despair on the clouded road to justice. Sometime he found help, other times rejection. It is in that sense he represented the spirit of American far more than those who often bragged that they did. A spirit that involved all the ideals of "never say die." A spirit that still lives today.

King's real importance was the total impact he had on the average America's way of life. He once said, "We may not change a person's mind, but we can certainly control his mode of behavior." It was his initiative that gave the start to the journey down the long road of acceptance and equality.

It is indeed an emotional thing for me to write about the person that I respect as the greatest man of this century. But today is not the time to look back in gloom, but to look ahead and see how we can continue what he died for. That was the way he wanted it. Remember, we all have the chance to make America what it says it is. AMEN

Greek wants to be known as individual

To the Editor:

Once again, Tom Brock has over-stepped his bounds. I get his information or his authority, but in both areas, he's screwed up.

I'm referring to the "Dig It" column in the Feb. 28 issue of The Pacer, which was up to his usual critical standards. He seems to think that he has the magical ability to wave his "journalistic" wand and put every student of UTM into a series of neat little groups.

Then, he sets about to criticize the groups, the individuals, the radio station, the people the SGA, and anyone or anything else that doesn't suit his fancy. I'm

Utopia

MARVIN MEACHUM

Citizens of Tennessee do not particularly care whether this state falls further into the depths of a fascist police state. Fascism, filled with racism, oppresses and suppresses any ideology which does not coincide with its own. Most certainly, this state descends ever more quickly to an oppressive level of its citizens.

Tennessee state legislators have seen fit recently to legislate morality while at the same time attempting to force this state's citizens to respect patriotism whether they want it or not.

Legislators can argue that the morality of this state's college students is destroying America's concept of everlasting puritanism. State legislators tried to enforce segregation of the two races male and female on all Tennessee university grounds.

If the legislators had their way it would be unlawful for males and females attending college to meet one another without first breaking through heavily constructed barriers.

"Life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness" granted all American citizens may as well blow away with the autumn leaves.

Patriotism will be instilled in nonbelieving heathens after the forced segregation of races. Break down the opposition's morale which in this case is mainly college students, and then propagandize these people until they respond and conform.

Again, many legislators have tried to make it unlawful for a person to not stand for the pledge of allegiance to the red, white and purple colors of the American flag or not sing the nation's anthem, whatever it is. This action directly violates the First Amendment of Amerika's Constitution.

This State's citizens and especially those of us who are immoral college students will change our attitudes. Or we will be arrested for immorality, the two races segregated, then filled with patriotism.

Coed cooking course offered to non-majors

By LINDA HOOPER
Pacer Staff Writer

If you are a failure when it comes to cooking, the Home Economics Department is offering a new course which could be a lifesaver.

Department chairman hospitalized

Dr. Stanley B. Williams, chairman of the Sociology and Anthropology Department, remains in Baptist Memorial Hospital in Memphis after becoming ill last week.

Physicians are still running tests to determine the nature and extent of Williams' illness, according to Jimmie Alewine, associate professor of sociology.

"At this stage of the game, I do not know what happened," Alewine said. "All you can really safely say is that he is ill."

Alewine said he has remained in touch with the Williams family and that Williams' condition is uncertain.

"When he will be back or what's wrong with him I really don't know," he said.

Beginning this quarter, Food Science 1001, is being offered to men and women who are non-Home Economics majors. The three-hour course will deal with practical techniques for selecting and preparing foods.

The course is designed to help independent consumers achieve satisfying results and to overcome some of the frustration and cost of beginner's efforts," said Anne L. Cook, assistant professor of food science and nutrition.

"It has become increasingly apparent that our students are doing more cooking on campus and off campus in trailers and apartments," Ms. Cook said.

"I want to teach them such things as how to make their own biscuit mix or cook whole meals in aluminum foil," she explained.

This is the first time Ms. Cook has taught this type of class, but she said she had one male in her Food Science 1010 class for majors last spring.

"I believe he has gotten a great deal out of it," she said. "We are hoping others will use this as an alternative to an elective from Liberal Arts."

This class will meet from 1-3 p.m. Monday and Wednesday.

Part of the class will be a lab where demonstrations and actual food preparation will take place, she said.

p.m.-2 a.m. However this is still in the future," Swiers said.

Swiers said the station is "hurting for money," and that a few very minor repairs have been made which has depleted funds to a point where very good financial management is mandatory.

"We have a couple of hundred dollars left for repairs and a couple of hundred dollars left for salaries," he said. "Any financial help we get would help. Banning anything major, we should last through the quarter."

The post of station manager is now nonexistent, Swiers said. The station is now operating out of the office of Dr. Milton Simmons, Dean of Liberal Arts, with two lab assistants Swiers and Mike Faulk, working directly with the radio staff personnel.

"Our understanding with Dr. Simmons is the students will continue to determine the programming with some general policy rules he feels are necessary," Swiers said. "This should present no outward change except an improvement in the air sound of the station."

"The managers in the past have had too much responsibility," Swiers continued. "He has been replaced with lab assistants whose duties are clearly defined. It's important to remember the students still determine the direction of the station."

"The basic change in the radio station is a direct link to the communications programs," Simmons said. "Until such time as we get a co-ordinator for the communications department, I will work very closely with Mr. Mike Freeland in the practicum."

"Students had been greatly overworked in the previous arrangement," Simmons continued. "It is very useful to have the station off the air part of the day so students can have the opportunity to get the basic tools they need."

Students with ideas for programming productions will have a chance to get their ideas considered collectively by those associated with the station, Simmons said. He said he hopes to someday have a full time director and better facilities at the station. "I feel these lie in the near future. I know I would welcome any suggestions on how we could improve the radio station operation and communications program," he said. "I appreciate the cooperative attitude of the students who have kept the station going on this contingency basis."

Exciting and frustrating'

Pianist began life at forty

By CHARLES WHITLOW
Pacer Staff Writer

But Allison Nelson, of the Nelson and Neal piano duo and artist-in-residence here, life began at 40 when her husband and partner, Harry Neal, died in September, 1968.

"It was exciting and frustrating," Ms. Nelson said, "but for once in my life, I could be me and not just a performer on a stage. Beginning my new life at forty was the greatest achievement I have ever made."

Since the age of eight, Allison Nelson has been achieving a professional career in which her personality has had to withstand the ageless loneliness anguish and frustration known only to a musician.

As a child prodigy, she saw not the carefree existence of a normal childhood, but the disciplined and rigid life of a mature professional. Though she expresses some feelings of regret toward her early life, she said that it was well worth the sacrifices she had to make.

"I shall always be grateful to my parents for teaching me how to work hard from the start. My childhood was very disciplined, and from this disciplined life style, I learned to sacrifice for the perfection I needed to become an artist," she said.

Through the 1950's and 1960's, Ms. Nelson was one of the prima donnas of the concert world, yet no one ever saw the real Allison. To the audiences she was only a performer, paid to perform, to smile, to be gracious to all the social elite and to be content and happy with this so-called fairy-tale of a life. She, like all musicians, was only a puppet on a string controlled and used by a cruel and demanding audience, she admits.

But even through 32 years of this, Ms. Allison found happiness in the fact that she was doing something worthwhile for the world of music as well as herself. Even now in her scattered personal appearances, one can see in her a feeling of calmness and contentment.

Perhaps it is the contentment in knowing that she no longer has to prove anything to herself, or to anyone else, or the contentment found in living her own "convenient" life in Paris.

"I love my life in Paris because of the relaxed kind of people you meet there. I can be myself in Paris, and that is what is important to me now," she said.

In being herself, one finds Ms. Nelson, not the helpless, dainty individual seen by the public, but she is a woman of strong personal strength derived from her strong-willed determination to reach the highest goal possible for her.

"No one really knows how hard I had to work during all those years with Harry. He made all the business decisions, but I suffered every pain that a wife, performer and mother suffers," she said.

As a teacher, Ms. Nelson is hard-working and ardent in her attempts to teach her students everything she possibly can.

My life is in my teaching, and my greatest disappointment is that I never have enough time to do everything I would like to. My accomplishments lie in my students and in my ability to communicate to them what I know about music," she said.

"Education has always been an important thing to me, and I wish I could instill in all my students the willingness to work hard and above all, give them the desire to learn."

Chaplin film will feature 'Kid' Coogan

Charlie Chaplin's comedy, "The Kid," will be shown Wednesday in the Humanities Building Auditorium, according to John Bucy, assistant director of the University Center.

"The Kid" was Chaplin's first feature-length film as writer, producer, director and star. It was immediately hailed as a screen masterpiece on release and has remained one of Chaplin's best-remembered films, even though it has not been seen since the silent era.

One of the reasons for the picture's fame was Jackie Coogan. Chaplin discovered Coogan in a railway station and signed him for the film.

The film will be shown at 4:15 and 8:30 p.m. Student admission will be $1 and general admission will be $1.25.

Bicycle Rally to assist in St. Jude fund drive

The Second Annual Bike Rally, sponsored jointly by Alpha Phi Omega and Mu Epsilon Delta, will be held at 10 a.m. May 4 in front of the Old Gym, according to Vicki Williams, co-chairman of the rally committee.

The Rally is being held in conjunction with a dunking booth and concession stand at BFD to raise money for St. Jude Children's Hospital, Ms. Williams said. It will cover a three-mile radius, beginning and ending at the old Gym, she said.

Riders will be divided into four categories, Ms. Williams said. The entry fee for male and female individuals is $2.50 with a prize of $5 and a trophy, Ms. Williams said. The entry fee for a male or female representing an organization is $5 with the winner being presented an organizational trophy.

Entry blanks, rules and a map of the course can be picked up at either David McKelroy in C141R Austin Peay or Ms. Williams in A343R McCord.

SGA SECRETARY OF
Communications

Three SGA contests feature competition

Presidential race headlines elections

Mike Faulk

Background
Age: 20; Classification: Senior; Home: Church Hill, Tenn.; Clubs, offices, honors, etc.: SGA Cabinet, Undergraduate Alumni Council, WUTM-FM staff, Pre-legal Society, Tennessee Intercollegiate State Legislature, sophomore class vice-president, SGA secretary of communications, WUTM-FM News director, WUTM-FM advertising manager, Ellington Hall Judicial Board, Alpha Phi Omega pledge class president, Alpha Phi Omega justice, public relations co-director of 1974 Push For St. Jude and publicity director for the 1974 Miss UTM Pageant. What do you want to accomplish most in your office?

No one has had the guts to stick their neck out on a $15,000 group. Polling the students and getting the largest possible sample will be the first step. One of the highest vote getters would be chosen and a major group will be booked for Fall Quarter. If, and only if, it sells out there should be no reason why another small concert can't be given free.

Besides concerts, entertainment like dances, movies, dinner theatres, coffee houses and nite-liters will be held every other weekend. People would like to have only a small cover charge for these events and apply the money to quality entertainment. I will make every attempt to see that the SGA Congress gets an opportunity to have meaningful input in teacher evaluation. Hopefully, these results will play an important part in the Faculty Senate Committee on tenure and promotion.

The radio station must stay on the air. Something must be done about the slow development of the communications major. I want students involved in selecting a director of the program. I also want an increased number of courses, particularly more practicum. What do you want to accomplish most in your office?

I'd like to see more people getting involved--an awakening so to speak. I'd like to pull out the so-called silent majority and let them have a voice--not just a few well-voiced people running the whole show.

What makes you feel you are the most qualified candidate for the position?

I firmly believe that people should not overextend themselves. My basic viewpoint is that quality is preferable to quantity. I view the office of SGA President as a co-ordinating and initiating position.

I feel that I am more than well. All I need is a "little help from my friends."

Lee Pritchett

Background
Age: 20; Classification: Senior; Home: Martin; Clubs, offices, honors, etc.: Ag Congressperson, Speaker of Congress, SGA Teacher Evaluation Committee member, SGA Housing, class officer, committee for revision of SGA Bylaws, University Committees of Institution, Speakers, Guidance, Homecoming, AG Club member, Agri-Council member, Alpha Gamma Rho member, past member of SGA House and Senate, past IFC president.

What do you want to accomplish most in your office?

My major goal in office will be to make Congress, the SGA Cabinet, myself, and SGA as a whole the best representation of the students possible. In doing this I would try to improve communications between Congress and the Cabinet, between Congress and University administrators and state legislators, and most important, between Congress and the student body.

I want to have more "quality rather than quantity" in entertainment which will probably solve the financial problem of entertainment, and I want to work to make differentiated housing a policy acceptable to all the students by working with University officials and state legislators.

I want to help establish a sound communication with a strong communication media such as a good radio station and newspaper. All in all I want to assist to my utmost capability, the students in striving for an institution where learning and living can be enjoyed with a maximum of success.

What makes you feel you are the most qualified candidate for the position?

I have had three years

experience working in SGA, working with the students and working with the University administration. My ability to represent the students on this campus has improved each year. I worked, not only in SGA, but in many other organizations and committees on campus. Now, I feel that to best use my capability and experience to benefit my fellow students I must have a position where I could be most effective.

Three vie for Vice-Presidency . . .

Gary Bulwinkel

Background
Age: 18; Classification: Freshman; Home: Somerville; Clubs, offices, honors, etc.: Agriculture Club member.

What do you want to accomplish most in your office?

A better way of communicating between students. A more effective way of dealing with administrative red tape (larger scissors). More student knowledge and participation in hiring and financial processes.

Jerry Caruso

Background
Age: 26; Classification: Senior; Home: Philadelphia, Pa.; Clubs, offices, honors, etc.: SGA Congressperson, Movie Committee chairman, Entertainment Committee member, WUTM-FM staff member, "Windmills" Co-Editor, Newman Council member, Sigma Tau Delta, Chi Gamma Iota, Harry Harrison Krol award, Gooch Foundation Scholarship, and "Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities."

What do you want to accomplish most in your office?

Good entertainment. Since this is the main function of the Vice-President, I'd like to see UTM come up to par with other universities as far as entertainment goes. This depends on availability of groups and the amount of our budget next year.

Movies should continue to be first rate though the admission price may be 50 cents on some. Movies such as "Deliverance," "Clockwork Orange," "Last Tango in Paris," and "Jesus Christ Superstar" are among those available.

Wagon Wheels, nite-lighters and coffeehouses should occur as often as our budget permits. I'd like to see more film series such as the Chaplin films, also more free films. These are ideas not promises. Only a fool or a politician makes promises.

Entertainment. No one has had the guts to stick their neck out on a $15,000 group. Polling the students and getting the largest possible sample will be my first step. One of the highest vote getters will be chosen and a major group will be booked for Fall Quarter. If, and only if, it sells out the students support it) there should be no reason why another small concert can't be given free.

You say this is impossible, but it's not. If they break even on a big concert, then they can spend $1,000 to $2,000 on groups like Brownsville Station for a smaller concert. If they spend this money they still wouldn't lose as much as was lost this past year. This process will be followed each quarter.

The possibilities are three major concerts and three free concerts. Besides concerts, entertainment like dances, movies, dinner theatres, coffee houses, and nite-liters will be held every other weekend.

Age: 20; Classification: Sophomore; Home: Dover; Clubs, offices, honors, etc.: Pacer staff writer, sophomore class president, U.S. House of Representatives page, Interfaith Center, Ag Club, Push for St. Jude Children's Hospital, Ellington Hall Association.

What makes you feel you are the most qualified candidate for the position?

I feel I am the most qualified candidate for Secretary of Communications because of my willingness to listen to what other people have to say. Many experiences I have had in a variety of on-campus and off-campus activities have given me respect for many different ideas and types of people.

Background
Age: 23; Classification: Junior; Home: Nashville; Clubs, offices, honors, etc.: Eagle Scout, assistant scout master, president of junior high school and junior and senior high school and junior and senior high classes, president of UMYF, worked in Regional "Up With People" work.

What makes you feel you are the most qualified candidate for the position?

My qualifications from on campus work are based mainly on the lines of communication that I have established between the students, through writing and editorial comment in the editorial cartoon, the administration, and the faculty of the University. Also included is the experience from working in public relations in the music industry, and being the operator of my personal business in Nashville.

Liberal Church stresses Christianity's mystic side

By PATT ELMORE
Pacer Feature Editor

A Liberal Catholic Church has been established in Martin, according to Rev. Charles W. Clevenger, pastor of the church.

"Our church is built on the younger generation," Clevenger said. "We teach the mystic and occult side of Christianity and only the youth really seem to understand and appreciate this."

According to Clevenger, the Liberal Catholic Church emphasizes intellectual and religious freedom and a natural balance between ceremonial worship, devotional aspiration, and scientific and mystic thought.

"Our church takes mostly from the New Testament," Clevenger said. "We teach about a loving, considerate, kind, forgiving God. We seek to give the world the best elements of Catholicism with the best of Protestantism. On the Catholic side are the seven sacraments and on the Protestant side we have an earnest attempt to promote religious freedom."

"The Liberal Catholic Church erects no barriers around its altar," Clevenger said. "What opinions or beliefs an individual holds is considered to be his own affair. The mind that is free is in the best condition to grow. Growth into spirituality enhances the perception of truth which each one must discover for himself and in his own way. Anything less than full mental freedom is thought to retard progress."

The Liberal Catholic Church stems from the Old Catholic Church of Holland which became independent of Rome over two centuries ago, Clevenger said. The clergy are neither forbidden nor enjoined to marry, he continued. They claim no authority over the individual conscience but rather stress is laid on their function as ministers of the divine sacraments, ready to serve those who may ask or need their help, he said.

Clevenger arrived in Martin approximately 29 months ago and began holding services in his home. Recently he has secured permission to hold services in the United Church Center on the corner of Lovelace and Charles, he said. Services are at 7:30 a.m. Sunday and 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Clevenger said.

"We feel it was one of the smoothest registrations we have ever had in that there was a more regular flow of students," Allison said. "We have not had many complaints about students not getting what classes they wanted."

Allison said the additional late registration will probably boost the current enrollment to about the same as last spring's enrollment of 4,385.

A survey taken last year revealed that the average time for a student to complete registration was about one hour, 15 minutes, Allison said, adding that he does not consider the time factor of great importance.

Allison said the registrar's office is formulating a plan in almost $9,000 on this one, Faulk said.

"We've already sold over 1,500 advance tickets and expect to sell between 500 and 1,000 at the door," Faulk said.

"We've done extensive advertising on TV and at Memphis State, and all the surrounding colleges because of the group's wide-spread popularity," Faulk said.

The Marshall Tucker Band originated out of Spartanburg, S.C. and is presently one of the South's biggest groups. The group got its start in 1973 touring with the Allman Brothers Band and perform in a similar style. Their album, "A New Life" features the hit, "Can't You See."

Tickets are on sale at the information desk at $4 advance and $5 at the door.

Allison said the registrar's office is formulating a plan in Registration ended at 5 p.m. Tuesday and the initial figures do not include late registration, Henry Allison, dean of admissions and records, said.

Med units take nine

Nine UTM students have been accepted by the UT Medical Units in Memphis, Dr. Phillip Watkins, vice chancellor for undergraduate life, announced. Accepted for the July class, 1974, were Rex Lee Janes, Manchester; James M. Jaques, Tigrett; Gary Kimsey, Memphis; Ronald Kirkland, Union City; William L. McGuire, Collerville; Joseph Manning, Tullahoma and Tommy Shaw, Savannah. Clarence Ellis, Memphis and John B. Phillips, Jackson, will enroll in the January 1975 class.

Council said last week he had to meet a number of requirements in order to be eligible to attend the academy. He said in order to attend the school he had to be with the department for five years, had to go through a background investigation and be nominated by some member of the department.

Council was nominated to go to the school by Ed Neal White, director of Safety and Security.

"It has been two years since I first applied to attend the school," Council said, "I am the first to go from Safety and Security, and the first officer from this area to go."

Council said that he would be taking courses in administration that are accredited by colleges and can be used toward a degree. Council said he would receive a certificate of recognition, and 16-semester hours credit.

Council also said that he would be taking a firearms course at the academy which will help him in his teaching of firearms courses at UTM.

The candidates' replies were Pritchett, "No;" Faulk, "Absolutely no;" and Hudson, "In light of the Congress decision today, yes."

Among other issues raised in the campaign are teacher evaluation, the radio station, advising and various small physical improvements.

Council also said that he would be taking a firearms course at the academy which will help him in his teaching of firearms courses at UTM.

The polls will be open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday in Rooms 206-207 of the University Center. If runoffs are necessary, the polls will again be open for the same hours, on Wednesday.

A series of dorm appearances and radio shows have been planned for the candidates to discuss the campaign issues at 7 tonight in G-H Hall, at 8 p.m. in McCord Hall and at 9 p.m. in Austin Peay Hall. They will meet at 7 p.m. Sunday at Atrium and at 9 p.m. in Clement Hall. Vice-presidential candidates are scheduled for a WUTM-FM program at 10 tonight. The presidential candidates are set for a radio show at 10 p.m. Sunday.

When asked about the possible rate of voter turnout, Marvin Flatt, Election Commission chairman, said,

"It's just about too early to say. I guess it really depends on the candidates—how hard they campaign to get the students out."

The phones are manned by personnel trained to handle a variety of situations, Coffield said. It provides answers to drug, pregnancy and other questions or connects the caller up directly with someone who can, Coffield said.

"The 16-member board, comprised of students, university personnel and community leaders is responsible for decision making," Coffield said.

Coffield added that UTM shows a definite need for such a service because people always have problems and need help. The Line is open also to students who are just lonely and want someone to talk to, Coffield said.

Funds for the Crisis Line come from interested civic groups and people in the community, Coffield said. The Line is open from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. seven days a week and the number is 587-3151. All information is kept confidential, Coffield said.

Clinic advertisement fails to show results

By PATT ELMORE

Pacer Feature Editor
The number of students seeking general disease treatment has not greatly increased since the advertisement of a VD clinic offered in the Student Health Center, according to Harriet Westmoreland, head nurse.

"I really haven't seen any increase since the posters appeared," Ms. Westmoreland said. "We've always had the clinic here, it just hasn't been specifically advertised."

Approximately two to three cases of VD are treated on campus each week, Ms. Westmoreland said.

Most of the cases treated at UTM are gonorrhea, Ms. Westmoreland said. This is also the most prominent VD type reported across the nation, she added.

According to a report prepared by the Tennessee Department of Public Health in Nashville, gonorrhea is increasing nationwide.

"There were over two million cases treated during the year," the report said. "It can cause sterility in both the male and female, arthritis and blindness. A person develops no immunity to gonorrhea, therefore, he may contract it repeatedly."

"In the male," the report continued, "gonorrhea will usually appear within three to five days after contact with an infected person."

There are two common signs, a pus discharge from the sex organ and a burning sensation and pain during urination. These symptoms are common to men. Many women show no symptoms whatsoever even though they are infected.

"Also, most recently, it was discovered that perhaps 17 percent of the men infected with gonorrhea show no signs. These silent reservoirs make this disease very difficult to control and result in many people never knowing they have the disease until body damage has been done."

"If a student feels he needs treatment," Ms. Westmoreland said, "we urge him to get treatment right away."

The clinic offers free examinations, cultures and treatment, Ms. Westmoreland said. The clinic will take cultures and smears and send them to the Jackson Public Health Center for processing. If the culture is returned positive, treatment can be given to the student at the health center.

"The treatment usually consists of medicine which can be taken by mouth," Ms. Westmoreland said.

"If a student will just come over and ask for help," Ms. Westmoreland said, "that's all they need to do. Everything will be kept strictly confidential."

"It's something that should be treated-like a sore throat," Ms. Westmoreland said. "The sin is not in having the disease, it's in not having it treated."

Swann said that RSI was under the impression that the radio station was a part of SGA, and therefore sent order blanks to both places.

After being asked if he had ever purchased records from RSI, Herron replied, "I purchased records once through Mike. I received 10 out of the 11 records that I ordered and I paid for the records."

"I figured that when the blank was sent to SGA, that it was meant for SGA use," Herron said. "I felt that I had the right to get the records."

However, Herron said that he did not know what RSI was before he ordered the records.

After testimony was heard, and all questions were answered by Faulk and Herron, a motion was made and passed that the charges against them be dropped.

After these charges were dropped, Swann turned the line of questioning to Farrar, who had been the central figure in the incident last quarter after it was learned that approximately 50 albums last order for the records was brought up by Swann. Swann said that according to the SGA telephone bills for previous months that there were two unpaid long distance calls on the bill that were made to a phone in Cincinnati that is listed as Record Source International.

"I have made personal calls on that phone, and I am prepared to pay for any calls that I have made," Farrar said.

New head residents' qualifications outlined

By KEITH FRANKLIN

Pacer Staff Writer
New head resident qualifications, which go into effect next fall, will not result in the dismissal of the present head residents, George Freeman, director of housing, said.

"No one will summarily be dismissed because they do not meet the new qualifications," Freeman said. He explained that if the present residents are not retained in a residence hall, they will be found another position with the University.

Freeman said he is not sure which present head residents will retain their positions because all applications which must be submitted yearly, are not in.

"We're looking and hoping to get applications from qualified people," Freeman said.

Grenadiers take second

UTM's Grenadier Drill Team walked away with the second place "fancy drill" trophy from the 26th Illinois Invitational Drill Meet held on the Champaign-Urbana campus last weekend.

Hundreds of American students placed in RECOGNIZED OVERSEAS MEDICAL SCHOOLS through Euromed!

For the session starting July, 1974, Euromed will assist qualified American students in gaining admission to recognized overseas medical schools.

And that's just the beginning.

Since the language barrier constitutes the preponderate difficulty in succeeding at a foreign school, the Euromed program also includes an intensive 12-16 week medical and conversational language course, mandatory for all students. Five hours daily, 5 days per week (12-16 weeks) the course is given in the country where the student will attend medical school.

In addition, Euromed provides students with a 12-16 week intensive cultural orientation program, with American students now studying medicine in that particular country serving as counselors.

Senior or graduate students currently enrolled in an American university are eligible to participate in the Euromed program.

The new qualifications state the head resident must have at least a bachelor's degree, Freeman said. Candidates for the position who have a master's degree, experience in resident hall living and/or experience with other college activities will be given preference, Freeman said.

"The hostesses have done a good job for what they were hired to do," Freeman said. "But our philosophy on residence hall operation has changed. We are trying to place as much control of the hall as possible in the hall staff. The head resident will be a part-time live-in employee responsible for the overall operation of the hall."

Three of the current hostesses -- Ms. Mattie Bradberry, Ms. Imo Taft and Ms. Wilma Tansil -- do not meet the new qualifications, Freeman said. Ms. Taft, Ellington Hall hostess, plans to retire at the end of this year; Ms. Bradberry, Clement Hall hostess, will retire in the near future and Ms. Tansil will be offered another position with the University, Freeman said.

"I cannot say for sure if the other hostesses will keep their positions," Freeman said. "It will depend on the qualifications of the other people who apply for the positions."

Freeman said he hopes to have a graduate assistant in each of the dorms. In the coed dorms, he would like to have a head resident of one sex and a graduate assistant of the opposite sex, Freeman said.

Dr. Kindleberger to discuss world monetary problems

Dr. Charles P. Kindleberger, an international-known economist, will speak at 7:30 tonight in the Humanities Auditorium on the worth of the dollar, according to Dr. Harry Hutson, chairman of the speakers committee.

Kindleberger will speak again at 10 a.m. and noon tomorrow in Room 206 of the University Center.

University Center. On both occasions he will discuss various aspects of the international money problem, including the balance of payments, the value of gold and floating currencies, Hutson said.

He will also be present for an informal lunch from 1-2 p.m. in Room 132A of the University Center for faculty

Readings set by Vanguard

Auditions for Vanguard Theatre's spring quarter student directed plays will be held Monday and Tuesday.

The plays, which were written by UTM students, will be produced near the end of this quarter, David G. LaVelle, Vanguard member, said. Any student interested in working in any phase of the theatre is urged to come to the readings, LaVelle said.

Kindleberger gained extensive experience in governmental affairs before joining the MIT faculty in 1948, serving as an economist for the Federal Reserve Bank for International Settlements, and the Department of State.

Kindleberger's best known book is "International Economics," first published in 1953 and now in its fifth edition. He is the author of nine other books.

This lecture is the second in the alumni visiting lecturer program, funded by a grant from the National Alumni Association. The series brings distinguished scholars to the campus for two days of lectures and classroom visits.

several serious poems and also for a page of short phrases. I think it's going to be very good."

Ms. Byrum feels this concert is a great improvement over last year's for several reasons.

"Our materials is better, meaning the dancers this year. We've had longer to work on the concert and we haven't been so pressed for time," Ms. Byrum said.

"Third, the students have helped with the choreography.

Also, collaborating with Mr. Carp has been a tremendous inspiration to the whole group.

Several of the dances are more traditional in they are representative of regular events, very literal, she said.

Other dances are more abstract or non-literal. There is no attempt to tell story or literally interpret an idea. The movements are done to create a mood--there is no "right" interpretation of "what the dance is trying to say."

"The best analogy I know for viewing a dance concert, especially with current works, is going to an art exhibit," Ms. Byrum said. "You'll have abstract art if the exhibit's current. There will be many interpretations for one painting."

"Not all the dances are serious. It is hoped the audience will find several of the dances funny and feels free to laugh," Ms. Byrum said. "This is a problem in West Tennessee where very little modern dance is ever seen and many do not know how to react to its performance. This is one reason the group hopes for a good turn-out."

According to Ms. Byrum, dance is the art of motion. Some of the dances use only one type of motion, such as slow, sustained movement, or explore the possibilities of one type of movement, such as a dance based on circles.

Several of the dances use props, such as masks, a broom and a door, she said.

The program culminates this year's work by the group. Performers come from the Modern Dance Club and modern dance physical education courses.

Ending career

Earl Knepp, 70 year old resident engineer, will retire this September after 38 years of employment at UTM. Knepp came here in 1936 to teach agriculture and has handled a number of different duties since that time.

Resident engineer to end 38-year career at UTM

By ERMA SEATON

Pacer Staff Writer

In his 38 years of employment at UTM, the toughest chore for Earl M. Knepp, resident engineer, was up-rooting the peach orchard which once grew where the dorms are today.

"We had the finest peach orchard in West Tennessee," Knepp recalled. "People would come from all over to get some of those peaches.

The hardest job I ever had was to put a bulldozer to those peach trees when we were going to build the first dorm. They were almost ripe."

Knepp will retire Sept. 1, but not without some regret.

"I wouldn't retire if I didn't have to," he said, "but it's mandatory at 70. I enjoy every bit of my work and I've always been busy."

Knepp came here in 1936 to teach agriculture. He headed the Agriculture Department and was in charge of farm-livestock for many years.

He has been resident engineer for every building on this campus except two. He drew the plans and helped construct the ROTC Building, was in charge of the physical plant and sponsored the student government for 23 years.

Knepp moved into Westview Apartments from Camp Breckinridge, Ky. after World War II and taught a full class load until 1970, when he became full time resident engineer.

"You just picked up those extra jobs back then," Knepp said. "When I came here there were less than 200 students. In WW II we got down to less than 15 boys, and most of them were 4-F," he said. "The faculty manned the farm and did the physical labor then. After the war we went from 250 to 800 students in one quarter - then we taught everything. You couldn't hire teachers fast enough. I taught engineering subjects I had never taught before."

In 1936, Knepp said, the campus extended from the old Engineering building to Reed

Hall and from Freeman Hall to the ITV station.

"It's hard to imagine the school being that small," Knepp said. "Stop and think that the main A. classroom was in the old greenhouse near the University Center, St. Charles Street, circled the campus," Knepp said. At that time, Knepp added, they kept 25,000 chickens. Part of the money made paid for running the University.

Knepp feels the biggest change here is in loss of closeness.

"When I came here you knew all the faculty and all the students. Now we don't know each other like when we were little. I miss that, but I don't wish we were smaller. I like progress," he said.

Knepp said his first love was teaching and he enjoyed working with the students more than anything else. His farm experience came next.

"I don't know hardly how to explain - I love agriculture and livestock," he said.

Growth has been the best change at UTM, Knepp feels, and he is proud to have been part of it.

"I don't think there's a school anywhere that has been built on cooperation of all people like this school has, from Dr. Meek through Dr. Dykes and Chancellor McGeehee," Knepp said. "All asked and received cooperation from all the faculty and students. I really believe that's the secret of the growth in this school. And to go from 200 to 5000 you had to grow."

A lot has happened in the time he has been here, he said, and he's seen UTM grow from a little junior college to a full university.

"You stay 38 years and you're gonna see a lot," Knepp said. "That's one lifetime, you see."

Diamondmen drop three straight

By DAN MORRIS
Pacer Sports Writer

A rash of mistakes produced a stunning setback for UTM baseball last week as it dropped a game to Lambuth Friday and bowed to Troy State in a weekend doubleheader.

Lambuth overcame a four-run deficit to edge the Pacers 6-5 in nine innings. The Eagles' winning run occurred after a routine double play collapsed and runners advanced to second and third. David Henry's sacrifice fly drove in the deciding run.

First baseman, Bob King, led UTM with two singles and a double. Short-stop Rod Rickert smashed a single and a 360-foot homerun. Both players registered two RBIs in the losing effort.

"Physical mistakes hurt us against Lambuth," said Coach David Warmbord. "We had a routine double play but blew it and two good chances of scoring some runs, but we didn't produce."

Saturday, Gulf South Conference foe Troy State used clutch hitting and outstanding defensive play to trip UTM. Troy breezed to a 6-4 win in the initial game and came from behind in the nightcap for a 5-3 extra inning decision.

Trojan Danny Martin slammed two homers and collected three RBIs in the opener. Shortstop Ed East rapped another homer for Troy. Mack Moore topped the Pacers with a single, a triple and two RBIs.

UTM grabbed a pair of runs in the nightcap's first inning and maintained that margin until the sixth, when Troy tied it up. Two-out singles following a pair of walks produced the Trojan's 10th inning win. UTM had the bases loaded with no outs in the ninth inning, but could not score. TSU's sweep left UTM with a 1-3 GSC mark.

"Against Troy, besides trying to fight the wind, we were trying to fight ourselves too," Warmbord said. "It was just one whole day of a mess. There were many physical and mental mistakes."

Lawrence University provided UTM with two wins, 2-1 and 6-0, while Florence State split a doubleheader with the Pacers 0-2 and 3-0. Moloney gained his second straight shut out in the FSU nightcap.

Rain caused cancellation of Lane College and Christian baseball. Mark Stafford's .310 average, Jim Moloney leads the pitching staff with two wins, no losses and an earned-run-average of .90.

Four doubleheaders greet the Pacers this week, including four GSC contests. Conference leader Jacksonville State invades UTM Saturday for a crucial game.

Wisconsin-LaCrosse is next with twin bills slated for Sunday and Monday afternoons. Florence State visits Wednesday for another GSC doubleheader. All series will begin at 1 p.m.

THE PACER SPORTS

Spring break action saw the Pacers register a 5-1 slate. UTM shut out Lambuth in a twin bill, 1-0 and 3-0, as pitchers George Sykes and Jim Moloney collected wins.

Defeats Union and Belmont

Pacer netters win pair, head for David Lipscomb

UTM's struggling netters, hindered in preseason workouts by inclement weather, bounced back from four consecutive setbacks to record a pair of dual victories over Belmont and Union.

The Pacers, 2-4 for the season, dropped a pair of decisions to major foes Murry State and Mississippi and bowed to Arkansas State and Southeast Missouri to drop 0-4 in the opening week of play.

UTM will host, Florence State and the University of the South in a triangular meet on April 5 and 6. Tuesday the Pacers will travel to David Lipscomb College in Nashville.

Moloney receives second chance, makes best of it on Pacer mound

By DAN MORRIS
Pacer Sports Writer

Jim Moloney is making the most out of a "second chance" he received two years ago.

At 6-3", 193 lbs., the junior is UTM's leading baseball pitcher. In three games, Moloney, a law enforcement major, has pitched 20 innings, two shut outs, allowed two runs and 12 hits. His .90 earned-run-average leads the Gulf South Conference.

A native of Mansfield, Ohio, Moloney played baseball for St. Peters High School, where he was chosen most valuable player his senior year as a pitcher. From there he went to Akron University in Ohio to play ball, but things did not work out.

"I sort of goofed up at Akron," Moloney said. "I really didn't take my pitching serious then. I had other things on my mind. I wasn't sure what I was going to do. I was almost ready to give up college, go to work and hang everything up."

Instead of quitting, Moloney made his way to UTM after talking to a friend from Ohio, who had played baseball here.

"I decided to give it another shot, since I had the chance," Moloney said. "I was more or less a last minute walk on. It was really the only choice I had, so I took it. I'm trying to make the best of it, since I did get a second chance. A lot of people don't get that chance in sports."

Moloney has worked to achieve his present status. He lifted weights last winter for seven weeks to strengthen his arm and ran one or two miles a day for three weeks before practice began.

"Jim has given two good mound performances and he's throwing the ball a lot harder than he did last year," Coach David Warmbrod said. "He's coming along real well. He worked hard over the holidays, and he's in good condition. It's just a matter of him staying in top shape for the upcoming games."

Moloney's shut out record was broken Saturday when Troy State's Ed East slammed a homer over the left-center field fence with a man in the sixth inning.

"I threw a pitch up there and I watched it go and that was it," Moloney said. "In three seconds the pressure was off and it was all gone. I guess that's the best way it could have happened instead of having bases loaded and all that extra pressure."

Moloney said he likes to see supporters at the games, but when he is pitching, he never knows who is there.

"When I'm on that mound, I don't know who is there or what they say," Moloney said. "If I did that, I wouldn't be concentrating, and if you're not concentrating, you're not going to get the job done."

Moloney will start against

Jacksonville State Saturday in what will be a must win for the Pacers.

"If we beat JSU this weekend, I think the team will mature more quickly and we will go on to win the conference," Moloney said.

"That's what we've talked about doing all year, and we know that we can do it. These next four or five days will decide our whole season. If we win the next six games, no one will stop us."

Moloney hopes to get drafted by a pro ball team after this season. He has talked to a few teams already.

"I'd go anywhere," Moloney said. "Beggars can't be choosy. But if it came down to a choice, I'd like to go back to Ohio and play for the Reds."

The southpaw sees his height, weight, attitude and fast ball as his greatest assets.

Lady Pacers settle for 3-3 tie, host Trevecca at 1 p.m. today

By GAIL EIDSON
Pacer Sports Editor

The Lady Pacers tennis team settled for a 3-3 tie in their opening match Monday with David Lipscomb College. Play had to be halted after the singles competition because of rain.

Liz Trinkler, Gail Sutton, and Melinda Solomon won matches for UTM.

"I think we could have won the match had it not rained," Coach Carolyn Byrum said.

"All of the girls played real good."

They began practicing during fall quarter and Ms. Byrum said, she felt this helped the team a great deal.

"For the first time the team has been practicing year-round and it has really helped our play," Ms. Byrum said. "I feel we have a lot of talent on the team this year."

Trinkler and Sutton are the only members returning from last year's team. Other members of this year's team are Alison Smith, Ginny Whitley, Debbie Pewitt, Melinda Solomon, Marylin Richter, and Carol Lowe.

"We have eight members on the team and they will be competing for positions on the team, Ms. Byrum said.

This afternoon the Lady Pacers will host Trevecca College on the new tennis courts at 1 p.m. Next Wednesday the team will travel to Cape Girardeau to face Southeastern University.

The Ladies were scheduled to play fourteen matches this year until Fisk University cancelled their match which was set for Sunday. All of the matches are set for the new tennis courts.

Pacer Wrestling Club formed, takes AAU title in first match

Members of the Pacer Wrestling team have formed The Pacer Wrestling Club and are wrestling in AAU tournaments.

Coach Phil McCartney said as long as the group wrestles as a club their NCAA standing will not be affected.

The club's first tournament was the Tri-State AAU championship in Mid-March.

Wade Judkins, Bruce Boggs and Phil McCartney took first place in the 114, 149 and 180 pound divisions respectively. Judkins was also selected as the outstanding wrestler.

Chris Lynch took second in the 163 weight class, Ron Smith also finished second in the heavyweight class. Rick Hayden took fourth place in the 198 class.

This weekend the group will travel to Nashville to compete in the Tennessee Pride tournament.

Spring practice set to conclude in May 2 game

UTM opened its spring football practice Saturday with approximately 65 participants, including 48 veterans.

Coach Bob Carroll will put the players through 20 sessions in accordance to NCAA regulations.

"If I had to single out one big problem, it would have to be finding running backs and receivers with the necessary speed to compete in our league," Carroll said. Several promising youngsters who were around last fall and a handful of newcomers will be up for grabs next fall."

Carroll said that the emphasis during drills will be on execution and contact work with several game-type scrimmages set for Saturdays. The Pacers' annual orange and blue intrasquad game will conclude spring drills on May 2.

Volleyball practices slated for Tuesday

Anyone interested in playing on the Women's Intercollegiate Volleyball team next year should meet at the Old Gym at 6 p.m. Tuesday.

This is not to say it is just to find out how many students are interested in playing volleyball, according to Coach Lucia Jones.

Push for St. Jude raises $8,000 over $17,500 goal

By KEITH FRANKLIN
Pacer Staff Writer

Alpha Phi Omega's fourth annual Push for St. Jude raised about $8,000 over its $17,500 goal during the Spring break, according to Scott Correll, chapter president.

Sore feet, blisters and aching legs were forgotten by the 50 fraternity members who walked from Martin to Memphis when the staff and children greeted them at St. Jude, Correll said.

The group left the UTM Administration Building at 8 a.m. March 16 with Provost Jimmy Trentham pushing the wheelbarrow on the first leg of one of the two routes, Correll said.

Together they had walked over 260 miles and had collected $25,855.26. They had traveled through over 30 cities taking up donations. During the week-long push, they ate food donated by churches, businesses and individuals, and slept in private homes, churches and donated motel rooms, Correll said.

The other group traveled Highway 22 from Martin to Union City, U.S. 51 from Union City to Millington and Highway 14 from Millington into Memphis on Jackson Avenue, David McKelroy, west route chairman, said. The two groups joined at St. Jude's entrance at 2:30 p.m. on March 22, Correll said.

"The fact that people knew we were coming because of months of advance work and excellent pre-Push publicity by the media was largely responsible for the success of The Push," Correll said.

Without the support of the students, faculty and administration of UTM The Push could not have been the success it was, Correll said.

"The Push proved that the people of West Tennessee have a great love for St. Jude Hospital and the work it does," he said.

"You cannot realize how far word of this Push had spread," said Jerry Frisch, Southern Region director of the organization sponsoring St. Jude.

"It has been picked up by AP and UPI and spread around the world," he said at an appreciation dinner hosted by Chancellor and Mrs. Larry McGehee Monday night for participants in The Push.

Push off

The fraternity collected $25,855, about $8,000 over their goal. The members walked from Martin to Memphis in two separate routes.

Historians' Conference set for April 16-17 Roundtable

By TOM HEATH
Pacer Staff Writer

Jesse Hill Ford, Clement Eaton and William Scarborough will lead the Southern Historians' and Writers' Conference being held April 16-17 as part of the fourth annual History Roundtable.

"We really have a great line of speakers for this spring," Dr. John Eisterhold, associate professor of history, said. "I feel it will be one of the better conferences of this kind in the country."

Ford, a novelist and native Tennessean, wrote "The Liberation of Lord Byron Jones." The book, which was published in 1965, was a Book of the Month Club selection and was made into a movie in 1969. A former resident of Humboldt, he now lives in Nashville.

Eaton, a long-time teacher at the University of Kentucky, wrote "The Freedom of Thought Struggle in the Old South," "A History of the Southern Confederacy" and other works. He visited UTM in 1971 to lecture on Southern history and culture.

Scarborough teaches at the University of Southern Mississippi. He is the author of "The Overseer," an analysis of plantation management in the Old South, and is editing the papers of Edmund Ruffin, a Southern agrarian and politician.

The Roundtable is one of a series of speakers being financed mainly by the Venture Fund. The Fund, which supplies approximately two-thirds of the current speaker money, will run out next year, Eisterhold said.

"We just don't know yet where we're going to get any money," Dr. Harry Hutson, Speaker's Committee chairman, said. "We have a task force headed by Dr. Eisterhold working on next year's speakers."

"We expect to get $1,500 from the University Center," Hutson said. "We would spend that for one or two speakers, mainly commentators, prominent politicians or someone in the arts, I suppose."

"We also have $1,500 coming from the Alumni Association," he continued. "This will be assigned to a school or department and they will have one or two speakers of an academic nature -- professors, scholars and so on."

Hutson said he also expects to receive $400-$500 from the Alumni Office. Also offered will be small grants to departments in the University to have them bring in speakers in their fields.

"We hope SGA will give us $500 again," Hutson said. "That could be used for a popular speaker of some kind. We haven't got any commitment from SGA, but it's a hope."

Hutson said there is a plan being studied by the Administration to charge the freshmen attending freshman studies week a special fee to help fund music and drama events open to these students.

Other students would pay an admission fee. Along with these programs, there would be seminars offered to fee-paying freshmen, Hutson said.

New books selected for women's shelves

By PATT ELMORE
Pacer Feature Editor

In approximately two to three weeks, over 30 new books by and about women will be added to the feminist book shelf in the library, according to Joel Stowers, head librarian.

"Today, there is an increasing emphasis on women's opportunities and rights," Stowers said, "and consequently we feel we need to build our collection in this area."

The list includes works on black women, women in literature, women in history and other subjects, said Diane McCollum, assistant director of women's activities.

Some of the selections ordered include "Silent Voices: The Southern Negro Woman Today" by Josephine Carson, "Everything a Woman Needs to Know to Get Paid What She's Worth" by Caroline Bird and "Hustling" Prostitution in Our Wide Open Society" by Gail Sheehy.

Stowers said the women's book shelf was started about a year ago when several women-including Mary Beth Davidson, publications editor; Billie Ann Pace, director of women's activities and Paula Poyner, former assistant admissions counselor-decided there needed to be more books in the library about women.

They approached him and were given a shelf located near the front of the library on the opposite side of the recent addition shelf, Stowers said.

The library staff selected books about women already in stock for the shelf, Stowers said. In addition to the books selected by Ms. McCollum, Stowers said, the library will continue to order books on women with its own funds. Many books bought by the library are based on ideas placed in the suggestion box Stowers added.

"It's sort of a cooperative venture," Stowers said. "Right now we have about 50 books and a list of magazine articles pertinent to the subject on the shelf."

"We hope to enlarge the collection," Stowers said, "because it's not extensive enough by any means. It is a start though."

Pacer, Spirit announce fall job openings

Applications for the 1974-75 staff of The Pacer and Spirit are now being accepted.

Positions on the Pacer include editor, copy editor, news editor, assistant news editor, feature editor, sports editor, special assignments editor, editorial page editor and advertising manager. Photography and graphics personnel are also being sought.

For further information on Pacer staff positions, students may call 7441 or come by Room 263 of the University Center.

Spirit positions include editor; sub-editors in classes, organizations, faculty-administration, art and layout, copy, sports and features; secretary and photographers. According to Neil Graves, Spirit advisor, experience is helpful but not absolutely required.

Full-time students with a GPA of 2.0 or higher will be considered for the Spirit.

Spirit application forms are available in Room 262 of the University Center and the English Department. According to Graves, they should be filled out and returned to him by April 15.

English Department selects new chairman

By RHONDA WELCH
Pacer Staff Writer

Dr. Emil L. Roy, currently a member of the Purdue University faculty, has been selected as the permanent chairman of the English Department and will assume his duties Aug. 1, Dr. Milton Simmons, dean of Liberal Arts, said.

Roy received his doctorate from the University of Southern California. He and his wife, Sandra, who is also on staff at Purdue, are the authors of several textbooks, including "1974 Literary Spectrum," Simmons said.

In addition to the selection of the new department head, several English teachers are either on leave or working under other departments, according to Mildred Payne, acting department chairman.

Robert Sugg, English instructor, is now working under the development office.

"I'm doing a three-month study evaluating the custodial department by identifying actions in hopes of improving
